TO BEGIN EDUCATIONAL WORK.

PROXIMITY MFG. COMPANY WILL OFFER SCHOOL FACILITIES.

Have Been Studying the Educational Needs of Employees for Some Time and are Determined to Meet Them—Revolution and Carpet Mills May Also Take Part.

The Proximity Manufacturing Company, the president of which is Mr. Caesar Cone, and the business of which is one of the largest in the State, has determined to provide educational facilities for its employees. They have been studying the needs of the employees in this line for some time, and are the first people to announce that they are to take practical measures to carry out the promise lately made to the legislative committee by the cotton mills to facilitate in every way possible the comfort and advantage of their employees.

In the population of the Proximity, Revolution and Carpet Mill settlement the Company finds by census that there are six hundred and sixty persons of school age, and the desire of the Proximity company is that all these mills shall go into copartnership in the school business, and build and furnish a house large enough for all. In case they do not, the Proximity company will act alone. The plans have not yet been fully developed, but the company has definitely determined to take up the subject fully and meet whatever the situation is found to be.

Inauguration Weather.

On last Monday, it will be remembered that the afternoon papers spoke of the weather as "perfect", while the papers next morning said that it was a rainy day. This has puzzled a great many people. The press dispatches for the afternoon papers were made up before twelve o'clock, when the weather was beautiful, while the dispatches of the following morning summed the weather up bad. Both were right in part. Judge Boyd, who returned from Washington last night, where he met many old friends and had a pleasant time, says that up to nearly twelve o'clock the weather was fine, but afterwards a smart rain set in and continued till nearly night. To show how near right the afternoon papers were, we mention the fact that at 11:30 Judge Boyd telegraphed Mrs. Boyd in Greensboro that the weather was beautiful. The rain did not prevent the carrying out of the program.

Death of Mr. Milan.

Mr. Nathan Milan died Saturday evening at his home on Mendenhall street of pneumonia. Mr. Milan had been sick only about one week, and his death was unexpected. The remains were taken this morning to his old home near Macon, in Warren county, for interment.

Only about three weeks ago Mr. Milan's father died and was carried to Warren county for interment and the son that day took a deep cold from the after effects of which he died. The deceased for several years had been connected with the clothing store of Mr. Isaacson, and had many friends throughout the county. Death has often visited this household, and in the short space of one year has taken from its midst, sister, father and brother.

Messrs. Brooks and Murphy Associated.

Mr. T. J. Murphy, who has recently located here for the practice of law, may hereafter be found in the office of Hon. A. L. Brooks with whom he will be associated. Mr. Murphy has already made many friends since his short stay in the city, and Mr. Brooks, who is out of town so much by reason of his official duties as Solicitor, may congratulate himself that the business of the office will be looked after in his absence by a gentleman of Mr. Murphy's character and ability. Those who intrust business to his hands may be sure that it will be attended to with thoroughness and fidelity.

Sheriff Weatherly went over to Reidsville today after the escaped convict Epps.

Accident at the Ice Factory.

A flange on a coil of the ammonia pipes of the Greensboro Ice & Coal Company burst in their factory last night, and the aroma of ammonia spread over the neighborhood. It was some time before the pungent fumes were abated sufficiently to allow any one to enter the factory and cut off the pipe. About one hundred and fifty dollars worth of the vapor escaped.

Ammonia in an ice factory is used to chill the salt water that freezes the ice. The ammonia draws the heat from the water and as soon as it is surcharged with heat it is forced into a coil of pipe over which cold water is constantly dripping, and thus it is cooled and the operation is then repeated.

The factory lost but little time and is running today.

A MEAN LYNCHING AT CARTHAGE

VICTIM A WHITE MAN ABOUT WHOSE GUILT THERE WAS DOUBT.

Mob Took Him From Jail and Strung Him Up Near the Outskirts of Town on a Black Jack—Some Lynchers Caught. Special to Charlotte Observer.

Carthage, March 9.—One of the most shocking crimes in the history of Moore county occurred here yesterday about 1 o'clock (Friday) morning when a mob, composed of 50 or 100 lawless citizens came into town and went directly to the county jail, where one, Silas Martindale, who was charged with rape, was confined, procured the keys from the jailer and took Martindale up Main street to the edge of town and hung him to a black-jack tree by the side of the road. His neck was not broken. He was simply choked to death and from indications about the scene it is supposed that the lynchers raised and lowered him many times in order to extort a confession from him and that he met a slow and horrible death, and orderly, not many of the citizens knowing that anything out of the ordinary had happened until morning. Many of the citizens viewed the lifeless body as it hung by the roadside exposed to the chilling wind early yesterday morning. About nine o'clock the county coroner and a jury cut the body down and instituted an investigation, which is not yet complete, but which, however, resulted in finding sufficient evidence to warrant the arrest of A. J. Jones, Dr. M. E. Street and Debt Andrews, of Moore county, and Bill Harding, of Chatham county. They are prominent citizens and some sensational developments are looked for. They are now in the custody of the sheriff and a great number of people are in Carthage and excitement is high. The solicitor, Colin M. McLean, Esq., of Elizabeth City, arrived this morning and is now on the scene. He and the coroner, Dr. G. McLeod, with the assistance of Messrs. Seawell and Burns, attorneys for Martindale, are making an effort to obtain evidence against the lynchers.

Several weeks ago one Mrs. Brewer, a respectable white lady and school teacher, living near Prosperity, in the upper portion of Moore county, while on her way to school one morning was met in the road by a man who threatened her life if she refused to submit to him. Later in the day Mrs. Brewer informed her husband of what had transpired. Suspicion rested on Silas Martindale. He was arrested and carried before Mrs. Brewer, who, it is said, identified him. He was given a hearing before a Justice of the Peace and sent to Carthage jail. Lynching was feared and Sheriff Jones slipped his prisoner to Raleigh jail for safe keeping, but brought him back about a week ago and lodged him in Carthage jail, where he met the fate above mentioned.

It is believed by many that Martindale was not guilty. At least there was considerable doubt about it. He was a white man.

EXPLOSION IN STEAM LAUNDRY.

LARGE NUMBER OF PERSONS KILLED OR SERIOUSLY INJURED.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Chicago, March 11.—A boiler in the Daremore Steam Laundry exploded today and it is believed that many lives have been lost. The number reported killed varies from five to twenty-five. The explosion completely wrecked the building, and twenty persons are known to be seriously injured.

The frames in buildings for two blocks around were blown out or cracked. There were a hundred men, boys and girls in the building at the time.

Later it was stated that five persons were killed and nine injured by the explosion. The place is the headquarters for the sanitary laundry trust, which employs many persons. Several more are expected to die.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by defective water feeding the apparatus.

BARRACKS COLLAPSED.

Chicago, March 11.—The latest estimate of the dead is 12, with over ninety lives imperilled in the barracks of the volunteers which collapsed from the shock of the explosion.

High Point, March 10.—Miss Daisy Finch died at her home in the southern part of town last night after a lingering illness of pneumonia. Her remains will be carried tomorrow to Pleasant Hill church where they will be interred. Rev. J. P. Lanning, of Trinity, will conduct the services.

The remains of Mr. John Cecil, who died of grip, were interred at Pleasant Grove burying grounds this morning. Rev. W. C. Hamner held services over the remains.

Mrs. H. F. Stamey is confined to her room with an attack of the grip.

The latest marriage in town was Miss Rel'qa Sechrist, a daughter of J. Matt Sechrist, Esq., to Mr. Ed Brown. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. M. Hilliard.

Prof. Earl M. Carter, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, Raleigh, is spending a day or so with his parents here.

Mr. N. H. Slaughtre, of the March House, Lexington, was here today shaking hands with friends.

The street committee have done some good work in having terra-cotta piping placed under the several bridges around town.

The plant of the High Point Ice and Coal Company, when completed, will be one of the most substantial and imposing factory buildings in town.

Since the fire parties are talking of the advisability of erecting a modern hotel on the corner of the burnt district. This is a good location if enough land can be bought adjoining for the purpose.

Will Live in Charlotte.

Mr. John Clendenin, who for a number of years has been connected with the Record, of this city, has accepted a position as "ad" man on the Charlotte Observer. Mr. Clendenin is now in Charlotte and will be joined there by Mrs. Clendenin in a short while.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Washington, March 11.—The answer of the British government, to the amended Hay Pauncefote treaty was received today by the British Ambassador, and communicated to Secretary Hay. The contents are not yet made public, but they probably reflect the earnest wishes of the British government to have the Nicaraguan canal of an international character instead of confined to the United States.

COURT OF IMPEACHMENT COMMENCED AT NOON TODAY.

Senators Were Resworn and Work Will be Begun in Earnest in Three Days—A Big Crowd Present.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, March 11.—At noon the Senate met as a court of impeachment.

A tremendous crowd, mainly ladies, filled the lobby and galleries.

Senator Woodward made a motion to postpone the trial until Thursday at noon. He said that he was informed that the Legislative business would be practically finished then.

The counsel on both sides stated that the pleadings were complete and the issue joined. The Senators were then sworn in and as soon as they finished taking the oaths of office there was an adjournment until Thursday. It was stated by some Senators that it will require all this week to finish the Legislative business.

There are numbers of witnesses on both sides.

The Senate then went into committee of the whole on the revenue bill.

Wheat.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Chicago, March 11.—Close May wheat 75%.

Heartily Concur.

After copying The Telegram's editorial on the Sampson-Schley controversy, the Concord Standard remarks:

"We most heartily concur. There's nothing to say against any one in that marvelous battle of Santiago Bay but the taunts thrown out by some very contracted critics would lead the unwary to believe that Sampson was away, not discharging an official duty, but that he intuitively foresaw a battle and fled from it. Also that he left the fleet without such disposition of the vessels as would most probably prevent the escape of Cervera, which by the brave execution proved the wisdom of his plan and which could be and was executed even in his absence the same as by his presence."

"But there is fancied greatness in virulent, preposterous criticisms. Sampson's Morgan letter seems unfortunate, as The Telegram says, but some of the participants in this controversy are doubtless as wide of the mark."

Two Sermons by Dr. Henry Louis Smith.

Dr. Henry Louis Smith, of Davidson College, preached at the First Presbyterian church yesterday both morning and night. The morning sermon was preached from the text: "The Lord God is a Sun," taken from the eighty-fourth Psalm. His sermon at night was on Shadrach, Meshech and Abednego.

Dr. Smith will be in the city for some time visiting his brother, Dr. Egbert Smith. He is one of the best known lecturers and preachers of the State.

Mr. C. A. Bray returned this morning from Baltimore and Washington. Mrs. Bray will return April first.

Walter, the Little son of Mr. R. L. Hollowell, who has had pneumonia, is getting better.

A GREENSBORO LADY'S QUEER COAT OF ARMS

She Adopts an Escutcheon Indicative of Modest Origin--The Bank Cashier With a Clipped Ear--A Way in Which Greensboro Doesn't Care to be a First Class Town.

Some of us have family escutcheons or coats of arms. A great majority of us have to scuffle along without 'em. A certain worthy lady of this city, who shall be nameless, instigated by a keen sense of humor, determined to get up a coat of arms, which should fit in with her own notions of things. And this is her idea of herself. On the base or lower half of a shield painted red or gules was drawn a dust brush, and on the chief or upper half on a blue field, was a dust shovel. On the dexter and sinister sides of the shield were two long handled brooms rampant and supporting the shield. Over the shield was a tub supposed to be full of soap suds. Over the whole was written in a defunct language this "strange device," "Opportet quemque cadum in sua face stare;" which we are informed by an old gentleman should be translated "Let every tub stand on its own bottom." The whole invention impressed one as wise, witty and eminently practical.

"Don't look at clouds if you want to see what the weather is to be," said Col. Jas. T. Morehead to a young man who was in front of the public building gazing heavenward in a desire to knock the bottom out of the future as regarded the weather. "Look to the winds," continued the colonel, "if you desire to tell what is going to happen. Down on the North Carolina banks the sixteen-year-old boys can tell almost by instinct what the weather will be. The old men send the boys out to find the way the wind is blowing, before they decide whether or not to make a trip on the water. A youngster will go out glance around the horizon, hold up his finger to catch the breeze if the wind is not blowing hard enough to find its direction indicated by the bend of the trees, and catch the direction in a moment and report to the old man 'so' west, 'so' east or 'so' so-east, 'no' west, or any other direction with the utmost ease. An up country man could not gather the same information in half day."

A well known bank cashier of the city was out Saturday afternoon after having gotten his "Sunday shave," in a maimed condition. On top of his left ear was a bunch of cotton that made him noticeable from a far off. His friends suggested that he had been attacked by bank robbers and had the left auditory receptacle clipped by a stray bullet. Some suggested one thing and some another, but the wounded one explained that his barber had made a mistake.

A Greensboro gentleman who was down in Charlotte last week attended a show there which had previously been here. Here the price was 75 cents; there it was thirty-five. Is it customary with companies to thus put their prices up and down? If it is Greensboro would like to get in on the cheap rate. Of course she's a first class town, but she's not willing to pay the difference for the distinction.

No External Symptoms.

The blood may be in bad condition, yet with no external signs, no skin eruption or sores to indicate it. The symptoms in such cases being a variable appetite, poor digestion, an indescribable weakness and nervousness, loss of flesh and a general run-down condition of the system—clearly showing the blood has lost its nutritive qualities, has become thin and watery. It is in just such cases that S. S. S. has done some of its quickest and most effective work by building up the blood and supplying the elements lacking to make it strong and vigorous.

"My wife used several bottles of S. S. S. as a blood purifier and to tone up a weak and emaciated system, with very marked effect by way of improvement. We regard it a great tonic and blood purifier."—J. F. DUFF, Princeton, Mo.

SSS is the greatest of all tonics, and you will find the appetite improves at once, strength returns, and nervousness vanishes as new rich pure blood once more circulates through all parts of the system.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. It contains no minerals whatever. Send for our free book on blood and skin diseases and write our physicians for any information or advice wanted. No charge for medical advice.

THE UP-TO-DATE IN THE BEGGING TRADE

The God - Bless - You - Sir
Man Has Had His Day
and Stands No Show.
How a Young Sport is Worked--The Man Out
of Work is No Good.

Philadelphia Record.

Hark! Hark! The dogs do bark,
The beggars are coming to town.
But they are not the same old beggars of the good old nursery rhyme. They are thoroughly up to date, and you are lucky if you walk a block on Chestnut street in the evening without being approached for a "touch." It is well known in police circles that some of the members of the begging fraternity are comparatively rich, and nearly all of them make comfortable livings.

Of course, as in all other professions there are some who just struggle along envious of the success of their more fortunate competitors. It is by no means the easiest thing in the world to succeed in the hand-out game." It requires, above everything else, a profound knowledge of human nature.

The time is past when one tale of woe could suffice. The parrot-like appeal of the man who is out of work and has a sick wife and two small children starving to death at home no longer meets with a ready response. The "God bless-you, kind sir" rigmorole is completely out of date. The successful beggar of these days must substitute a quickness of wit and a nimble tongue for the antiquated methods.

MUST STUDY CHARACTER.

The beggar who would succeed must demonstrate that the greatest study of mankind is man. He must be quick to read a person's character. He must take instantaneous advantage of the fads and foibles which he reads in the face of his subject. He must be an expert in the study of physiognomy. He knows on the instant just how to approach a man in a way that will tickle his vanity. The professional beggar no longer pleads for aid through the medium of sympathy. Vanity is the beggar's open sesame that leads to the purse strings. Appeal to a man's vanity make him think you take him to be something which he is not, but which he would like to have people think he is, and the battle is won. That's the secret of the fin de siecle beggar's success.

Have you ever watched them at work, these keen students of human nature? It would be well worth your while to follow in the wake of one some night and note the care and preparation which precedes a "touch." Select one who is up in his business and you will be amply repaid. You may see him at his best on Chestnut street, although, of course, he is exceedingly careful not to be known as an habitue of any one locality. That wouldn't do at all. As to his appearance, shabby gentility is the most popular cloak. He mustn't be too shabby nor yet too genteel. There are lightning changes, too, when occasion demands. A collar and tie can be adjusted very quickly in a dark doorway, even a pair of worn gloves may be surreptitiously donned, should it be necessary to appear extremely genteel, yet frayed at the edges.

THE "DEAD GAME SPORT."

The very young man, with down still upon his cheeks, is a favorite subject for the beggar. You wouldn't think so, would you? But that is because you don't know as much about human nature as the professional beggar does. Still, the very young man must be approached cautiously. If he has had a couple of drinks, and feels that he is a perfect "devil of a fellow," so much the better. Then he wears his vanity on his coat sleeve. If he is experiencing his first jag he is sure game if worked in the proper way. All the world seems rosy to him. He feels that everybody is looking at him and saying: "There's a dead game sport."

The professional sloches up and heaves a sigh that seems to come from the soles of his boots. He simulates extreme shakiness. He regards the very young man unsteadily.

Every lady who sends her name and address will receive by mail free a trial package of a celebrated beauty's remedies for beautifying the complexion. It is not a face powder, cream, cosmetic or bleach, contains no oil, grease, paste or chemicals and is absolutely the only successful beauty maker known.

Fannie B. Ralston, 628 Lexington Ave., New York, Ky., sister of the famous Kentucky Beauty Helen Ralston, who also used these beautifiers, says:—"When I began using Mme. Ribault's complexion beautifiers I did not think it possible to clear my skin, my face was in a horrible condition literally covered with red spots, pimples, blackheads, moth patches and freckles. And whenever the weather changed eczema, chaps and salt rheum added to my misery. I suffered a thousand deaths, and when I sent for a trial of Mme. Ribault's beautifiers just as I had done before time and again with other advertised remedies, I did not expect any results, imagine my surprise when the next day all redness and soreness were gone. At the end of a week my skin began to clear, the freckles and moth patches disappeared and the eczema and salt rheum were completely cured. I improved so wonderfully that my friends did not recognize me, so quickly had the change taken place. My skin is now perfectly lovely, and there is not a blemish or wrinkle anywhere.

I hope all ladies will at least try these marvelous beautifiers. Do not delay but write immediately. The treatment is harmless, a natural beauty maker and will permanently remove all tan, freckles, moth patches, pimples, blackheads, flesh worms, sunburn, chaps, roughness and any and all skin imperfections no matter what they may be.

Write to-day without fail and the free treatment will be mailed prepaid with full directions and all particulars absolutely free. Address, MME. M. RIBAUT, 338 E. 12th St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

MONDAY, MARCH 11

HAS IT COME?

The Telegram has been as confidently expecting to see the formation of an international trust as some of its set-temed contemporaries have been expecting to see flying machines. We see no reason why capital, having controlled the home field, should not seek to control the worldwide field. The international trust is coming along alright, and it may be here right away. Whether or not there are already preparations on foot for one, will soon be seen. The London Daily Express declared on Saturday that an alliance of this kind was on foot, according to a New York Sun special, "between American trusts and great commercial syndicates in Germany. A member of the Mannheim-Bremen Petroleum Stock Company, one of the German agencies of the Standard Oil Company, and Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan are, according to the papers, the moving spirits in the plan. It says that Mr. Morgan will meet representatives of the leading German syndicates at a conference in Berlin in April. This conference has already been arranged by cable."

The Express prints a statement made by an unnamed American millionaire, who, it says, has discussed a German-American business union with the principals in both countries. He says: "We do not fear England in America, nor does Germany. We simply fear each other, but the world is big enough for both nations and the rival trusts are going to harmonize their interests. Mr. Morgan will be here in April. After he begins it will not be long before an international cartel to regulate prices and products will be formed. We do not fear England because her machinery is obsolete and her men are spiritless and ground to a low level by false unionism. America and Germany are going to stand together and dominate the world politics of business. I think that one day the industries of the entire world will be syndicated."

It's coming as sure as anything, whether this scheme materializes or not. But it is startling to hear such quiet assumption that England is to be shelved and that Germany and America which are more less antagonistic now, are to be such close friends. In the meantime what is to be done about it?

The report in the papers yesterday was to the effect that the Seaboard Air Line had been purchased by August Belmont and the Rothschilds, and would be closely allied with the Louisville and Nashville to prevent its falling into the hands of the Southern. Mr. John Skelton Williams promptly denied the report. But, after all, it's only a question of time that the Southern and Seaboard will be together, and there is not much necessity to pay any great amount of attention to the preliminary sparring.

The determination of the Proximity Manufacturing Company to provide school advantages for the children in their settlement cannot be too strongly commended. It is a thing which other mills in the State have done with success, not only so far as the real good of their help was concerned, but to advantage to themselves.

UP-TO-DATE IN BEGGING TRADE

Ten changes to one he hasn't had a drink all day for your successful beggar must keep a clear head. But he looks to be a man on the verge of delirium tremens.

"I beg your pardon, old sport," he says as the very young man catches sight of him. "I'm just dying for a drink and I'm stone broke. If I don't get a bracer soon I'll see things. You know how it is yourself." The very young man is immediately puffed up with pride.

"You know how it is, old sport," reiterates our professional friend, following up a point that has touched home. "You know the awful feeling that comes when the bottle's empty and there's no more to be had. You know, old sport."

IT WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

Of course, the very young man doesn't know anything of the kind, but he is flattered by the repeated reference to his bibulous experiences, and now into his pocket goes his hand. The "touch" is always good for a quarter and sometimes for a half. "There," the subject exclaims magnanimously, "go and blow yourself; go and drink yourself to death." Then he feels more like a dead game sport than ever.

There is another type of victim who is almost as easy. He is the chap who thinks he looks like an actor, and who deludes himself with the belief that everybody takes him to be a stage favorite. He is smooth-shaven and dresses more loudly than a songs and dance man in his working togs. He is probably a clerk in a shoe store or stands behind a ribbon counter; but the consuming ambition of his life is to be taken for an actor. The professional beggar is an adept counterfeit detector, whether in coin or man, he sizes up his fellow to the queen's taste. "My friend," the beggar begins, "I am in sore need of assistance. You are an actor sir, if I am not mistaken."

The victim is vastly pleased "Why how did you know that?" he asks, beaming his blandest smile.

"Ah, sir; it is not difficult to recognize that," is the suave reply. "Indeed, your face seems to recall some vague recollection of a more fortunate past. For I, too, have trod the boards, sir. You might not think it to look at me now, but I was once an actor like yourself. The price of a night's lodging is all I ask, sir." The beggar gets it every time.

THERE ARE OTHER VICTIMS.

Then there is the benevolent old gentleman with a white tie, who is filled with the tale of a wayward son, who wants money enough to go home and eat fatted calves. The benevolent old gentleman has probably never been to the theatre but once in his life, when he saw "The Old Homestead," and his sympathies are aroused because he has been touched in the right spot. That is where the finesse of the professional beggar comes in. If the benevolent old gentleman imagined for a moment that the tear-choked voice belonged to a man who made his living that way he would be shocked beyond measure. But he doesn't suspect, and goes his way rejoicing in the thought that he has brought happiness to a lonely residue.

The up-to-date professional rather steers clear of women, for, strange as it may seem, men are more easily worked; and the more worldly-wise the victim the keener is the beggar's zest in the chase. Still, elderly ladies dressed in black are sometimes told of "mothers' prayers" and "wrecked lives" with moderate success. Indeed, the professional beggar is seldom at a loss and rarely makes a mistake in playing up to his victims.

Mrs. Dubbs and the Clubs.

Mrs. Araminta Dubbs, President of fifteen clubs, Member of as many more, 'Sociate in half a score,

Wrote,
And read,
And said,

In her clubs from dawn till bed.
She was ever on the go—
"Mustn't miss my club, you know."
Daybreak, Health and Breakfast clubs
Honored Araminta Dubbs,
Morning club from nine to ten,
Browning club—then on again—
Luncheon club, and Sisterhood,
Euchre Club, and Better Food,
Ibsen Club, and Amateurs,
Had for her their clubby lures.

Smile
And chat
Of this
And that—

"Faith, or 'How to trim a hat,'
"Latest Searches for a role,"
"What We Know About the Soul,"
"Woman's Sphere" and "Help the Men,"
"How to Treat a Sitting Hen,"
"Ibsen's Mystic Inner Thought,"
"Whicness of the Why and What."

"Immortality of Plays,"
"Is the Walking Skirt a Craze?"
"Wireless Messages to Mars,"
"Chats with Famous Female Stars"

To
And fro,
And on
The go—

Mrs. Dubbs was never slow—
Talked and wrote and played and drew,

Took a course in cooking, too;
Sorrow came, though, after awhile,
In a very sudden style.

Mr. Dubbs became quite ill;
But, with martyr's iron will,
Mrs. Araminta Dubbs
Kept her ceaseless round of clubs, Till one afternoon when she Was, as sweetly as could be,
Speaking, with much grace and life,
On "The Duties of a Wife"

To the Maids and Matrons' Guild,
All her eloquence was stilled
By
A card,
Which her Speech marred—

Dubbs' soul had been unbarred.
Mrs. Dubbs, repressed a sigh,
Said: "'Twas mean of him to die,
Just as I'm about to reach Finest part of all my speech!"
But of course, she had to quit,
And that was the end of it;
For, when she had buried Dubbs,
Sad to tell, all of the clubs
Had another on her throne,
And she found herself alone.

She
Who stubs
Her toe
On Clubs,
Should heed the fate of Mrs. Dubbs.

What the "Spectator," February 7th, 1901, of New York,

A Leading Insurance Publication and Authority on Life Insurance, Has to Say About the State Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis:

This company is a striking example of the fact that it is possible in these days of fierce competition in life insurance to build up a life insurance company possessed of financial strength without having to call upon stockholders for capital or ask assistance from the State. The State Life of Indianapolis is a mutual company organized in the latter part of 1894, and its sixth annual statement shows that it has already passed quite a number of companies, many of which were in existence twenty years ago. The following table of comparative growth is, in most respects, a record breaker, not a single company in its first six years having accumulated so much insurance in force, and but a very few having built up their assets so rapidly:

Year	Insurance in Force	Admitted Assets	Liabilities	Surplus
1895	$3,584,500	$18,300	$15,868	$ 2,432
1896	7,859,500	58,770	45,483	13,287
1897	15,885,500	150,891	88,275	62,615
1898	17,049,000	256,645	152,037	107,608
1899	22,208,470	417,781	256,246	161,534
1900	28,339,877	671,380	409,504	261,775

It will be observed that there has been no break in the onward progress of the company, each year having been better than the preceding. Last year was a particularly good year, the increase being: In insurance force, $6,131,407; in assets, $53,709, and in surplus, $100,241. From the first the company has maintained the full four per cent. reserve, although it was not required to until it re-incorporated under the law of Indiana, passed in 1899, which permitted the organization of old line companies in that State. Its reserve is deposited with the State under the provisions of the compulsory deposit law, and it is worth nothing that its deposit now amounts to $500,000, which is over $90,000 more than the law actually requires.

The company is now working in twenty-nine States and Territories, the officials of eight of which have examined its affairs and given unqualified endorsement to its methods. Its officers have demonstrated their ability, and the State Life must be reckoned with as an important factor in the life insurance field.

Stock Companies with large capital, by using the interest on their capital, to increase assets, have an insurmountable advantage over purely mutuals in their early years—except on this one point the State Life leads the world's records, on every desirable feature.

THE EMERSON PIANO

Stand and don't you forget it. The State Normal and Industrial College, Greensboro, N. C., bought the same piano in 1896, 1897 and 1900. Dr. McIver, who looks carefully after the interest of the college, gave all the dealers and branch piano houses a chance to compete and a number competed by pricing their pianos, while others put their pianos by the side of the old and tried EMERSON, which came off victorious the third time. The Emerson piano will stand by and always gives that satisfaction that pleases the owner. Call and see them.

HIS NEIGHBOR.

They tell me to "love my neighbor"—
she's as sweet as sweet kin be!
But what I'm a-wantin' to know is this:
Why don't my neighbor love me?
I send her the sweetest flowers—though they're not so sweet as her!
But never in summer hours does she send me a "Thank you, sir!"

They tell me to "love my neighbor," an'
I love her right along;
But what does she care for the grief I bear, and what for my sweetest song?

I dunno what songs or flowers my neighbor does prefer,
For never in summer hours does she send
me a "Thank you, sir!"

Tell me to "love my neighbor?" I've loved her until I seem,
In the lonely way o' the world to-day,
like one that walks in a dream!
But what's the comfort that it brings to me? My heart an' my pulses stir;
But never in summer hours does she send me a "Thank you, sir!"

The Death of a Coward

The boy leant wearily against the bulwark rails, watching the lights as they came up one by one on the coast. The plunging of the ship still made his head reel, and he was weak from want of food. He seemed altogether apart from the stir and life of that 300 emigrants on board created. His whole soul filled with a dumb and impotent protest against his fate, and the life before him. Old Capt. Malcolm had shown little wisdom when he sent his only son to sea to have some pluck knocked into him.

In the father's defense it may be said that he was utterly unable to realize the timidity and sensitiveness of the boy. All his ancestors had been rough seamen who had faced storm and danger on every sea, and courage and nerve were hereditary qualities. And now the last of the Malcolms seemed more of a girl than any of his five sisters.

All the exhortations to manliness, all the covert reproaches that came from his father, were so many darts that rankled and festered in his soul, but failed to compel his nature to be other than it was. The boy was made for peace, for the quiet and uneventful life that an office in his native town could have offered under his mother's watchful care. Instead, he was here, an apprentice on the steamship Pride of Asia, a big cargo boat just off the slips on the Tyne, and carrying emigrants to the Cape.

The ship's doctor came out of the saloon in the poop to go his evening round below. With him was his wife, a slight, girlish figure, wrapped in a heavy cloak. She turned at the ladder which led to the lower deck, and was about to go back, when her eyes fell on the boy. She had noticed him once or twice before, and his white face and lonely air roused the womanly sympathy in her. She touched him lightly on the shoulder and said: "You are leaving home, like me."

The boy started. A slight color sprang to his cheeks, and tears to his eyes.
He smiled faintly, showing a gap where two teeth had been knocked out by a smaller boy in the only fight he had ever had at school.

"Yes, ma'am," he replied.
"You must feel lonely," she said;
"but you will soon be back, and then everyone will think so much of you."

Her voice had something caressing
and inviting about it; and so his confidence, overcoming his shyness and reserve, broke bounds. He told her everything—how he would hate this life, how all filled him with fear and disgust, the cold and darkness, the chaff and horseplay of his fellow-apprentices, the indifference of everyone around him.
He told how impossible it was to come up to his father's standard, how he felt he was a born coward, and that he would always be one, shrinking instinctively from the danger and excitement that bolder natures took pleasure in.

She listened sympathetically. Her hand had patted him once or twice, and encouraged him to go on. When he ended, she said: "You must not be too hard on yourself. It is not always those who fear the least that are bravest in the end. When the time comes, I am sure you will do your duty."

The boy heard her listlessly. He had little heart to respond to any appeal to his manliness. There seemed no time when he would not shrink from hardship or danger. He almost felt as if his confidence had been misplaced, and that she had understood nothing after all.

She saw the change, and her interest in him somewhat waned. Courage to a woman is the primary quality in the other sex, and nothing will compensate for the lack of it. She bade him good night and turned away back to the poop.

In a few minutes the second mate passed along the deck and told the boy to go below. Then all was quiet.

A few hours later the Pride of Asia
was steaming at "slow," with her whistle going every few minutes. The Channel fog girt the ship like a shroud. The captain walked the bridge uneasily. No tempest or rock-bound shore gives the anxiety that a fog on this waterway of the nations does. Danger is imminent everywhere, and the most careful seamanship is no guarantee of safety. So it was now. A hoarse shout came from the man on the lookout. The captain sprang to the telegraph, and as "Full speed astern" rang out a large sailing ship took form in the fog, and in a few seconds crashed into the steamer in front of the bridge.

The Pride of Asia shook from stem
to stern, heeled over to starboard, and then began to forge ahead, while the other went pounding along her side, wrenching the port boats from her davits and staving them in with her bowsprit. Then she passed away as a ghost in the fog.

The Pride of Asia had met her death wound. At once all was noise and confusion. The emigrants came pouring up on deck, screaming and shouting with terror. Some of the sailors rushed to clear the boats, but a sharp order from the captain stopped them.

In a few seconds the captain had decided on his course. The remaining boats would not carry a hundred and fifty people. There were more than twice that number on board.
On the other hand, the land was about three miles off, and a sandy and protected beach meant safety.
But could it be done with that hole in her side? He would try. He changed her course, rang "Full speed ahead," and shouted to the mate: "Go down and shut the forward bulkheads,
Mr. Jones."

The mate ran forward, and with the help of the carpenter tore off part of the hatch covering and sprang to the ladder. As he climbed down young Malcolm peered aimlessly over the hatch.

"Bring down a lantern," cried the mate, and Malcolm, galvanized into activity by fear, seized a lantern from the alleyways and clambered down into the hold.

The mate ran toward the iron door
in the bulkhead, which had been left open, and pushed it to.

"The light here—quick!"

And the boy brought it.

"Blast them!—oh, blast them!"

roared the mate. "They've put the bolts on the wrong side. In five minutes we'll all be in kingdom come."

He stumbled for the ladder, wild with terror. Yes, every one would be drowned, and he, too, with the cruel, cold water sucking him down.
He dropped the lantern and began to pull himself up the ladder.

Suddenly he stopped. An idea had been born in his brain; a hideous, unthinkable thought—the door could be closed from the other side. He hung limply on the ladder, and in his mind
raged a tornado of conflict.

Oh, to be out of this awful ship, safe once again at home! But the mate had said that all were lost.
That meant him, too. And if only that door were shut, all could be saved. Great beads of sweat broke out on his forehead. He groaned and writhed about like one on the rack.
Then he began to descend slowly. He stopped again on the last rung. He clung to the ladder as a drowning man to a rope. He could never let go. Why was he not going up the ladder? There were boats left. He had seen that. He could fight for a place, and be saved. He was so young;
not old, like the mate and captain.
They must give him a place.

All at once he loosened his hold and ran blindly for the door. On the way he tripped and fell heavily on his hands and face, cutting and bruising them. He lay half stunned for a minute, moaning from the pain, then raised himself and crawled the rest of the way. He passed through the door, and with feverish haste shot the great iron bolts. The boy was alone in his tomb. He leaned against the bulkhead, sick, sick to death.
Why had he done this? He did not know. They would be saved now, but he—O! God, no more light or life for him! His poor dry lips moved convulsively, and his hands beat aimlessly on the iron wall. He would go back. Hope returned with a rush. He would die in the open—with others around him. It would be good to die thus, not in this hell of darkness and desolation. He unshot one bolt and fumbled for the other. Then, with a low moan, he cast himself from it, driving his teeth into his lips in his agony.

It was not to be. He was too great a coward to live. He could only die.
He would pray. But he could think of nothing—nothing but the "This night when I lie down to sleep" he had learned at his mother's knee.

To sleep—oh, he would sleep long!
There was to be no waking this time.

Long shuddering fits shook his frame as he felt the icy fingers of death rising inch by inch. He screamed and raved, dashing his head against the iron, that death might come quickly. He plunged beneath the water, only to come up again, fighting madly for life. Then there was a long drawn sob, and then silence.

The captain stood on the bridge, a figure of stony despair. The land could never be reached with water pouring like a torrent into the forward hold. He cursed his negligence in overlooking such a frightful blunder. It was going to cost 200 lives, and he must not be among the saved. The Pride of Asia was getting low in the water, but he could not understand why she was not sinking more by the bow. She was vibrating from the engines, pushed to their highest pressure, for the firemen stuck gallantly to their posts. Five minutes went, and ten, and then,

with a sudden shock, she took ground,
and all were safe.

Next morning, young Malcolm was missing, and the sorrowful news was sent to his father. It was thought he had fallen overboard when the ship grounded, and he could not swim.

A week afterward, the divers entered the forward hold, and found, to their astonishment, that the bulkhead door, which they had expected to find open, was closed.

They forced it open, and against it was floating the body of a boy.

Old Capt. Malcolm comes often to the little graveyard by the sea. In it stands a cross, on which are inscribed the words: "HERE LIES A HERO."—Pall Mall Magazine.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of static or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

For the weakness and prostration following gripe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Howard Gardner.

NO RIGHT TO UGLINESS

The woman who is lovely in face form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at C. E. Holton's drug store.

The stomach controls the situation. Those who are hearty and strong are those who can eat and digest plenty of food. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the good food you want. If you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, belching or any other stomach trouble, this preparation can't help but do you good. The most sensitive stomachs can take it. Howard Gardner.
